

The Jewish Quarterly Review

VOLUME 102, NUMBER 1 (WINTER 2012)

Editor's Introduction: New Last Words of Yiddish

DAVID N. MYERS v

Note

"Since I have learned of these evil tidings, I have been heartsick and I am unable to sleep" The Old Yiddish and Hebrew Letters from 1476 in the Shadow of Blood Libels in Northern Italy and Germany 1

BER BORIS KOTLERMAN

Articles

A Yiddish Bard in Berlin: Moyshe Kulbak and the Flourishing of Yiddish Poetry in Exile 19

RACHEL SEELIG

From Łódź to Tel Aviv: The Yiddish Political Satire of Shimen Dzigán and Yisroel Shumacher 50

JOHN M. EFRON

Review Forum: On David Engel's Historians of the Jews and the Holocaust

Reflections on the Holocaust and Jewish History 81

ALEXANDRA GARBARINI

On the "War" between Holocaust Historians and Jewish Historians 91

DAVID CESARANI

Writing Jewish History after the Holocaust 96

RICHARD I. COHEN

Review Essays

Enlightenment/Haskalah: What's in a Name? Recent Work on Judaism and the Enlightenment 113

ADAM SUTCLIFFE

“The King is Dead [and has been for three decades], Long Live the King”: Contemporary Kabbalah and Scholem’s Shadow 131

SHAUL MAGID

Speaking the Silence 154

WENDY ZIERLER

Contributors 161

📄 Recent Dissertations in Jewish Studies (Web only)

- 📄 Indicates that this is available to subscribers online only.
Go to <http://jqr.pennpress.org>